

Dr. Abdullah Al-Bahrani

Associate Professor of Economics and Director of the Center for Economic Education

Haile College of Business

Northern Kentucky University

Dr. Abdullah's work is focused on making economics accessible to students and the public. His research has centered around innovative economic education approaches. He also has published work on financial outcomes and racial differences in the economy. Abdullah is the recipient of the Kenneth G. Elzinga Distinguished Teaching Award (2020), Excellence in Teaching and Instruction award (2016), Dean's Citation award (2015), and several other awards that recognize his passion and ability for teaching. Abdullah is committed to increase the diversity of the students studying economics by creating inclusive environments and increasing the sense of belonging.