

BRENT GLOY

Associate Professor, Department of Agricultural Economics
Director, Center for Commercial Agriculture
Purdue University

Brent Gloy is an associate professor in the Department of Agricultural Economics at Purdue University. He teaches and conducts research and extension programs in the areas of agricultural finance and agribusiness management. The majority of his research has focused on issues related to the supply and demand for credit.

Mr. Gloy currently serves as the director of the Center for Commercial Agriculture and as the associate director of research for the Center for Food and Agricultural Business. Prior to arriving at Purdue, he was an associate professor in the Department of Applied Economics and Management at Cornell University. Mr. Gloy received his master's degree and doctorate in agricultural economics from Purdue University. In addition to his activities in West Lafayette, he remains involved in the family farm business located in southwestern Nebraska.