TIMOTHY J. GALLAGHER

Executive Vice President, Bunge North America

Timothy J. Gallagher is executive vice president of Bunge North America responsible for managing Bunge's agribusiness activities in North America. Since joining Bunge in 1983 as a management trainee, Mr. Gallagher has had broad exposure to the agribusiness segment serving as an export trader, manager of the North American marine operations, and as general manager of Bunge Grain. In 2007, Mr. Gallagher joined North America's sister company, Bunge Global Agribusiness, where he served as director of global operations. In this role, he helped ensure Bunge optimized its assets around the world. He returned to Bunge North America in his current role in July 2009.

Mr. Gallagher earned a bachelor's degree in agricultural economics from the University of Illinois and an MBA from Washington University in St. Louis.
