

STRUCTURAL TRANSITIONS IN GLOBAL AGRICULTURE

←
JULY 15-16, 2014
FEDERAL RESERVE BANK
OF KANSAS CITY

MARY L. SHELMAN

Director, Agribusiness Program, Harvard Business School

Mary Shelman is director of the Agribusiness Program at the Harvard Business School where she coordinates the content and production of the annual Agribusiness Seminar.

Her focus is on the future of global agribusiness and how food, feed and fiber intersect with energy, the environment and other issues. Ms. Shelman, working with CEOs of industry-leading firms, has been the author of more than 60 case studies illustrating situations of strategic change and transformational leadership. Her work has been published in Harvard Business Review, Market Leader and International Food and Agribusiness Management Review. She previously was chairman of the board of RiceTec Inc., a Texas-based rice seed company.

Ms. Shelman has a Bachelor of Science degree in chemical engineering from the University of Kentucky and an MBA from the Harvard Business School.