GET ‘MONEY SMART’ WITH THE KANSAS CITY FED

Consumers of all ages can take advantage of more than a dozen free personal finance sessions and programs covering credit reports, understanding mortgages, budgeting, building wealth and more at the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City’s Money Smart Day, Saturday, April 19, at the Kansas City Public Library, 14 W. 10th St., Kansas City, Mo. Free parking is available.

The event, from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., includes sessions on “Planning for the Costs of Education,” “Money and Teens: Helping Youth Learn How to Reach Their Goals,” “Mortgage 101,” “Estate Planning: Introduction to the Essentials” and more. Attendees will also be able to meet with a financial advisor for a free 20-minute financial tune up and access a free copy of their credit report.

A Children’s Learning Area will also be available for children and their families to participate in financial education programs throughout the day.

Registration and a full list of all Money Smart Day sessions are available at moneysmartday.kcfed.org.

Money Smart Day, sponsored by the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, is part of Money Smart Month, a community-wide outreach initiative designed to promote and encourage financial awareness throughout the month of April. A full list of the month’s events is available at www.moneysmartkc.org.
