KANSAS CITY FED NAMES ADVISORY COUNCIL APPOINTMENT

The Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City has appointed Craig Showalter, president and chief executive officer of the Wyoming Community Foundation, to its Community Development Advisory Council.

Showalter has led the Wyoming Community Foundation since 2011 and leads the non-profit organization's work with donors to create permanent funds to meet a range of community development needs across the state.

The Community Development Advisory Council advises the Kansas City Fed on current developments and emerging issues in community and economic development. Council members are community and business leaders from the Tenth Federal Reserve District's seven states and serve three-year terms. The Council meets twice a year with Kansas City Fed staff to offer insight on economic and community development issues from around the region.

Other council members are: Shelley Marquez, vice president and community development manager, Wells Fargo Bank, Denver; Marie Longserre, president and CEO, Santa Fe Business Incubator, Santa Fe, N.M.; Clyde McQueen, president and CEO, Full Employment Council, Kansas City; John Santner, Midwest Regional director, NeighborWorks America, Kansas City; Steve Radley, president and CEO, NetWork Kansas, Wichita, Kan.; Katrina Washington, broker/owner, Stratos Realty Group, Oklahoma City.

As the regional headquarters of the nation's central bank, the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City and its branches in Denver, Oklahoma City and Omaha serve the seven states of the Tenth Federal Reserve District: Colorado, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Wyoming, northern New Mexico and western Missouri.
