

Mark Rosegrant, Director, Environment and Production Technology Division, International Food Policy Research Institute

Mr. Rosegrant is director of the Environment and Production Technology Division at the International Food Policy Research Institute in Washington, DC. He has extensive experience in research and policy analysis in agriculture and economic development, with an emphasis on water resources and other natural resource and agricultural policy issues. He currently directs research on climate change, water resources, sustainable land management, genetic resources and biotechnology and agriculture and energy.

Mr. Rosegrant has written or edited 12 books and more than 100 refereed papers in agricultural economics, water resources and food policy analysis. Mr. Rosegrant is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a fellow of the Agricultural and Applied Economics Association.